SPIRIT GIVES BIRTH: 7th CALF BORN AT CARE FOR WILD

In the early hours of September 3rd, 2023, an unexpected miracle arrived. Spirit gave birth to her first calf. This incredible moment marked a joyous and very important step in Spirit's journey. Spirit has undergone a complex rehabilitation process, with the team fighting for her life every day. From the tiny, terrified orphan who lost her own mother to poachers, she has transformed into a strong and fiercely protective mother herself. We are immensely proud of this very special girl so let's take a moment to remind ourselves of just how far she has come.

Special thank you and acknowledgement to Spirit Wildlife Foundation and Sirius Group for their long term and unwavering support of Spirit

LET'S REVISIT SPIRIT'S STORY...

On the 17th November 2016, a rhino calf was spotted alone in the northern region of the Sabi Sand Game Reserve. Discovered by Edwin Pierce on Arathusa Farm near the border of the Kruger National Park (KNP), the baby was estimated to be around 7 months old. It is believed that she was running alone in the bush for three days before she was discovered.

Mpumalanga Tourism and Parks Agency (MTPA) Veterinarian, Dr Ferreira du Plessis, darted the calf. She ran towards a nearby waterhole and fell into the mud. Fortunately the ground team were close on hand to pull the baby to safety. She was very thin. With the severe drought, food had been scarce and it looked as though Spirit, as she would later be named, had virtually no fat reserves. She was placed on drips for the journey to Care for Wild Rhino Sanctuary where Petronel was waiting to receive the new orphan.

Spirit took a little while to accept the bottle but as soon as she began to drink, staff knew that they had won her trust. Her blindfold and ear plugs were removed and she was introduced to fellow orphans, Zac, Jemu and Grey. Both Jemu and Grey also arrived within the same week as Spirit. Spirit certainly provided a lot of challenges for the team. She was not a strong baby and required a lot of round the clock monitoring and care. Petronel would roll up small balls of grass to hand feed her and with recurring episodes of pneumonia, the team fought for her life every day.

The new crash of 4 soon moved to the bigger bomas and continued through their rehabilitation programme together. As time went on, Spirit grew a lot stronger and in April 2018, 5 month old Lilli became the fifth member of the crash. Lilli was a few years younger than her new friends but Spirit and the others welcomed her instantly. In January 2019, Spirit and her crash entered the rewilding and release programme together and on the 3rd September 2023, Spirit gave birth to her first calf.

Enhancing Rhino Welfare in Translocation: A Collaborative Milestone in Global Conservation

The conservation of rhinos remains crucial in global efforts to protect keystone species and biodiversity. As part of global conservation initiatives, rhinos are being relocated to protected areas for safety and as part of repopulation efforts. However, rhino translocation presents many challenges which can impact on the success of the project and well being of the animals.

Earlier this month, Care for Wild worked together with the University of Pretoria, South African National Parks, Wildlifevets.com and MTPA on a research project aimed at addressing the issues of dehydration and stress in rhinos during translocation, particularly in long-distance journeys of up to 30-40 hours. These extended trips significantly increase the risk of dehydration. Prior translocation research has shown that rhinos often refuse to drink water during translocation. This project focuses on improving fluid administration methods and reducing stress to enhance the welfare and health of rhinos undergoing translocation and thereby contributing to the overall success of translocation efforts globally.

Professor Leith Meyer, director of the Wildlife Centre at the University of Pretoria, specialises in wildlife capture and translocation, with a particular focus on rhino capture and anesthesia. “To tackle the dehydration problem, the research project explores alternative methods of fluid administration during transport. Two methods are under investigation: intravenous fluids, commonly used by veterinarians, and rectal fluid administration. The objective is to determine the effectiveness of these techniques in maintaining the rhinos' hydration levels.’

Furthermore, the project aims to assess the practicality and feasibility of implementing these fluid administration methods during rhino translocations. If proven effective, these methods could revolutionize rhino transportation practices, greatly improving their' welfare and overall health.

Throughout the transportation process, rhinos experience substantial stress, especially during the capture phase when they are tranquilised. Once safely within the transport crate, they receive tranquilisers to reduce stress and prevent self-injury or crate damage. These tranquilizers are periodically administered during the journey.

“Over the course of 2 weeks, translocation conditions were mimicked at Care for Wild with 3 separate groups of rhinos monitored for 24 hours in transportation crates. This collaborative research project will contribute significantly to ongoing global conservation efforts.” Petronel Nieuwoudt.

Celebrating Excellence: Given Masters Dog Handler Levels 1 to 4

In an outstanding achievement, Given has excelled in the Dog Handler Levels 1 to 4 training program with Genesis K9 Group, securing the first position in both the theory and practical aspects of the course. His journey began with Level 1, where he learned to care for service dogs, and progressed through handling trained service dogs for crime deterrence in Level 2. Given further enhanced his skills by supervising kennel practices at Level 3 and learned to handle patrol dogs in Level 4, assisting in the apprehension of suspects. Given's remarkable success stands as a testament to his unwavering dedication and passion, reinforcing our commitment to our mission of protection wildlife. Well don Given, we are so proud of you.

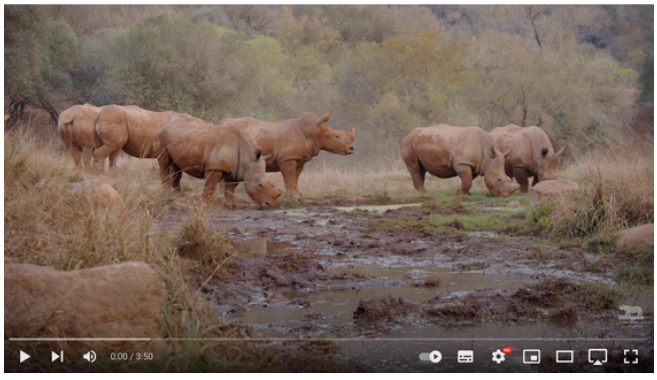

Thank You LVM for sponsoring our World Rhino Day t-shirts

World Rhino Day 22nd September 2023

On World Rhino Day 2023 we chose to delve into the remarkable role that rhinos play in waterways and rivers within their ecosystems. Rhinos create and sustain watering holes for themselves and other creatures. Their presence also aids in erosion control as they dig wallows that collect water during heavy rains, reducing surface runoff and benefiting river stability. Their diverse eating habits influence vegetation, impacting plant species along riverbanks and floodplains, directly affecting soil stability and water retention. Additionally, the sheer mass and movement of rhinos leave a noticeable imprint, compacting soil and altering landscapes, potentially affecting water flow dynamics. In essence, rhinos are stewards of the land and water, and protecting them is essential to preserving these incredible ecological processes, ensuring the health of our waterways and the beauty of our shared natural world.

Safeguarding our Horses: Vaccination Day for the Mounted Unit

Taking good care of the incredible horses of our elite Mounted Unit is a top priority at Care for Wild. These equine partners play a crucial role in our conservation and protection efforts, and we want them to be in the best of health and condition for their important job. That's why our horses get regular veterinary check-ups and vaccinations. Dr. Albertus Coetzee and his team from West Acres Animal Hospital recently visited the Mounted Unit giving them check-ups to catch any potential health issues early on. They also received their African Horse Sickness and Rabies vaccinations as part of our preventative health care program.

Good Work Foundation Returns

Out of every 100 children who embark on their educational journey in South Africa, approximately 60 will successfully make it to their final year, 37 will proudly graduate, and only a mere 12 will have the chance to step into the world of higher education. Good Work Foundation is dedicated to reshaping this narrative, striving to create opportunities for those young individuals who may otherwise never fully realize their potential.

Thanks to a partnership with Konica Minolta, Good Work Foundation has the privilege of annually selecting a group of students to participate in a unique program at Care for Wild. Throughout their stay at Care for Wild, these selected students integrate into an international volunteer team, becoming valued and indispensable contributors in rhino conservation. This initiative goes beyond traditional classroom learning, immersing them in a hands-on experience that deepens their understanding of the critical field of rhino conservation.

Moreover, the educational program offers these students unique insights into the broader context of rhino conservation. They gain a comprehensive understanding of the challenges facing rhinos and other wildlife, including the threats posed by poaching and habitat loss. Additionally, they learn about the global significance of rhino conservation in the context of biodiversity preservation and the important role they can play in the protection of their heritage.

Pepperl+Fuchs Renews Commitment to Care for Wild

PEPPERL+FUCHS

We extend our heartfelt appreciation to loyal and long term supporters, Pepperl+Fuchs. The Pepperl+Fuchs team recently visited Care for Wild for a day of team buildingthat culminated in the renewal of another year of financial support for rhino orphan Oz. This partnership spans an incredible eight years, reflecting their unwavering dedication to Oz's well-being since his arrival as a small orphan. In recent years, Pepperl+Fuchs' support has extended even further into the provision of robust rugged tablets, which have significantly enhanced our field data capture and monitoring efforts for the released rhinos in our rewilding program. We are truly grateful for their enduring support and the profound impact they continue to make on our mission of rhino conservation. Thank you for always loving Oz!

Welcome back Monica and Michele

We want to express our heartfelt gratitude to Michele and her wonderful mother, Monica Burkard, for their recent visit to Care for Wild. Monica and Michele hold a special place in our hearts, as Monica has been an unwavering sponsor for our rhino orphan, Summer, since her arrival as a small orphan. Michele, who has been a long-term volunteer at Care for Wild, played an instrumental role in the raising and care of black rhino Swazi, who has since been successfully released.

Their recent visit was a heartfelt and cherished moment for us all, as we were thrilled to see their smiles and feel their warm hearts once again. Your continued support and dedication make a world of difference to our rhinos, and we are profoundly grateful for your ongoing commitment to our mission.

Martin and Julie While: Honoring a Legacy of Love and Support for Care for Wild

We want to extend our most heartfelt gratitude to Martin and Julie While. We are so grateful for their dedication as long-standing volunteers, returning to our sanctuary many times over the years. Even when they are back in England, their tireless efforts to raise funds, share our content, and spread the word about Care for Wild have been instrumental in our work. Martin's incredible photography contributions have allowed us to showcase our work to new levels.

Their most recent visit brought a cheque for R23,000 and touched our hearts deeply. This trip was extremely poignant, having just lost a very special lady in their lives. Jan was a loyal Care for Wild Supporter with a special love for Daisy and Modjadji. We will forever hold Jan in our hearts, and the continued support in her memory means the world to us.

With deepest appreciation.

LEKKER

COFFEE & WATERING HOLE

In the picturesque state of Colorado, a unique coffee shop named Lekker Coffee has become more than just a place for great brews and friendly vibes. It's been a haven of support for Care for Wild. Run by the dynamic and amazing mother-daughter team of Dawn and Kara, along with Kara's husband, Brett, Lekker Coffee has turned a coffee shop into a philanthropic powerhouse of rhino love!

Lekker Coffee is all about crafting not just a tasty cup of coffee but also offering locally sourced goods and a remarkable customer experience with 10% of profits going to Care for Wild. Kara, one of the driving forces behind Lekker Coffee, has a deeply personal connection to us. She spent a summer volunteering at Care For Wild where she fell head over heels for rhinos and wanted to continue doing something to help save them.

Due to personal circumstances, Momma Dawn and Kara will be taking on a new adventure closer to family in California but they have just introduced the new owner Eric, who will be taking over and continuing with Lekker Coffee's support for Care for Wild. Thank you for all the love, enthusiasm, creativity and support.
